

2019 Ray DeVries Scholarship

Congratulations to the 2019 Ray DeVries Scholarship Recipients. Each year the Washington Farm Bureau offers up to five $2,000 scholarships as part of the Ray DeVries Memorial Scholarship program. These scholarships are awarded to undergraduate students currently enrolled in agriculture or a related field at an accredited college or university. Applicants must have completed at least one year of secondary education.

Luke Wolfisberg of Whatcom county is an Agricultural and Food Business Economics major at Washington State University. Growing up on his family's dairy farm, Luke learned about the hard work and dedication behind the agriculture industry. In addition to his classroom education, interning at All West Select Sires exposed Luke to the business and management aspects behind a successful ag business. Luke eventually plans to return to Lynden to take over the family dairy operation.

the agriculture industry to growing up on the family farm and his family's involvement in Farm Bureau. Additionally, Slate was an active 4-H and FFA member, exhibiting his cattle at county fairs. After graduation, Slate will utilize his education to manage a successful farm.

Holly Lenssen is majoring in Agriculture Education at Washington State University and minoring in Animal Science. She is the daughter of Whatcom Farm Bureau members David and Heather Lenssen. Growing up, Holly showed dairy cattle through 4-H and FFA and served as the County Dairy Ambassador. Her involvement in the dairy industry instilled a passion for agriculture and paved the way to her career in education and becoming an FFA Advisor.

Kelsey Vejraska, daughter of Todd and Katlenia Vejraska of Okanogan County FB is attending Oklahoma State University. She is double majoring in Agricultural Communications and Agribusiness and believes “being an effective communicator is the key to accomplishing many things in life, and the agriculture industry is no exception.” Kelsey has already honed in on those communication skills through her leadership roles in the Washington Jr. Angus Association and plans to continue to close the communication gap from producer to consumer.

Slate Haberman of Kittitas County is attending Washington State University pursuing a degree in Agricultural Technology and Production Management. Slate is the son of Brad and Marina Haberman. He attributes his passion for Harrison Moore, son of Gary and Deanne Moore, is attending Washington State University. Harrison is majoring in Agriculture and Food Business Economics and minoring in Business Administration. Harrison grew up on a dryland wheat farm in Prosser where he developed a strong understanding of production agriculture. As a past FFA member, Harrison learned valuable leadership and advocacy skills that, in combination with his collegiate education will make him an unstoppable agribusiness man.
